

Bartosz Bednarski

Junior Front-end Developer

I am a self-taught individual who is continuously developing my skills through working on individual projects where I have the opportunity to apply and showcase my abilities. Currently, I am working on a website that will serve as a guide for the browser-based game "geoguessr." The project consists of a front-end layer written in React using React Router and styled with SCSS, a REST API built in Express to handle database queries, and a PostgreSQL database. Simultaneously, I am learning React Native, which will enable me to create a mobile application for the aforementioned website. Time management is crucial for me, and I use Jira to monitor progress in the project.

Feel free to check the progress of my work on GitHub in the GEOMETA repository.

In my spare time, I read about design patterns and tackle problems on LeetCode or HackerRank.
